LONDON LIBRARY,

ST. JAMES'S SQUARE, S.W.

THE LIBRARY offers to its Members over 220,000 volumes selected from the literature of all countries, including a large proportion of old and valuable Works not supplied by ordinary Circulating Libraries.

Additions are continually made, both of the standard Works of the day and of old and rare Books.

Fifteen volumes at a time are allowed on loan to Country Members; Ten to residents in London. For every extra pound per annum, an additional number of Volumes may be had at the rate of five Volumes at one time of old Works, or the supply of any new Work (provided it is already in the Library) by the purchase of another copy.

Fourteen days are allowed for the perusal of new Books (i.e. Books published within the previous twelve months), and two months for Books of older date.

The Reading Room, which is open daily from Ten to Half-past Six, is supplied with Periodicals, English and Foreign, together with a selection of new Books for use in the room only.

The Library is closed three days at Easter, three days at Christmas, and on Whit-Monday and August Bank Holiday.

Subscribers are admitted on the recommendation of a Member, subject to the approval of the Committee.

PREFACE

THE countries of the world have in all ages had storehouses of books in which learned men have read. In ancient and mediæval times the books or manuscripts which the libraries contained were comparatively few and scholars a mere handful. In modern times, with the increase of culture and education, students are reckoned in thousands and books in tens of thousands.

As books were few in olden days the need of a Catalogue of Authors' Names was hardly felt; only a library here and there possessed a fragment of such a thing. Generally the scholar could not only survey at a glance his "twenty bookes clad in blak or reed" but could easily lay his hand on the book he wanted.

With the multiplication and development of libraries an Author Catalogue has, however, become indispensable, and now exists in every good library. A Subject-Index was in ancient times never even dreamt of, and I have not been able to trace anything of the kind earlier than the eighteenth century.

A scholar here and there may still succeed, with the aid of a Catalogue of Authors' Names, in finding his way through the mass of printed matter, but books in modern days have accumulated so rapidly that he often searches vainly for, or is only led by devious ways to the discovery of, the books which he knows must exist.

An Author Catalogue assumes that the reader consulting it is acquainted with the names of all the authors who have written on the subject he wishes to study, an assumption which can only be correct in rare cases. Even the librarian of a large library, to whom so many turn in their difficulties, however wide his knowledge of the books committed to his care, must be an imperfect guide to their contents.

A library without a Subject-Index is to the unlearned reader what an unmapped country is to the ordinary traveller, and is practically useless for the purpose of his researches. With a museum the case is different; there printed hand-books help the visitor, and specimens of the particular subject of his search are laid out before his eyes.

Books unfortunately do not admit of tabulation and arrangement like objects in a museum. It is true that attempts at classification on the shelves have been made in all great libraries, but these attempts fall far short of perfection, and can only be useful to those who are able personally to visit the book-stores.

These difficulties were very strongly felt by the late Sir Leslie Stephen, who was President of the London Library in 1893. His interest in the Library, as the world knows, was keen and his visits were constant. When he spoke about Library matters his mind always finally reverted to the necessity of a Subject-Index, a work on which he had set his heart. "The Library can never be really useful," he was wont to say, "now that it has grown to its present size, until we have a Subject-Index. Books have increased so that the scholar even forgets what has been written on his own subject and requires a reminder." There is a "daily deepening drift" of books which obliterates and effaces all recollection and record of the older ones.

HISTORY OF

You must hack through much deposit
Ere you know for sure who was it
Came to burial with such honour in the files.

Sir Leslie Stephen urged me to undertake the task of making a Subject-Index, and encouraged me to begin at once. Unfortunately it had to be delayed in consequence of the necessity of first issuing an Author Catalogue. He reluctantly recognised that precedence must be given to that work. Though he has not lived to see the Index finished, he did live to see the beginning. One of his last visits to the Library was to our cataloguing room to see the progress we were making, and his words of appreciation as he examined the slips of paper were full of encouragement. It is therefore to the late Sir Leslie Stephen primarily that the credit of the conception of this Index is due.

The London Library, it had often been said, was especially adapted for a Subject-Index. It was of the right size and of the right quality. A vast miscellaneous Library like the British Museum is too big to be analysed and indexed except in sections, and that is useless to the ordinary reader. A library should not, it is suggested, contain more than a quarter of a million books, if the intention be to publish either an Author Catalogue or a Subject-Index of manageable size. The London Library fulfils this important condition.

The peculiar merit of the London Library lies in the fact that since its foundation in 1841 it has been governed by committees of literary experts who in succession have devoted much of their leisure to its service, and during the seventy years of its existence have helped to bring together a collection of standard works in every subject.

The first step towards the present undertaking was the formation in 1903 of a small sub-committee, consisting of Sir Leslie Stephen, Mr. Frederic Harrison, Mr. H. R. Tedder, Mr. Sidney Lee, Mr. Edmund Gosse, Mr. Austin Dobson, and the Rev. W. Hunt, to consider general principles and the form of the Subject-Index. The conclusions arrived at by that committee have, with slight modifications, been adhered to. The work itself was definitely begun on the 1st May 1905, and has since been continued without interruption. The time which would be required for the preparation and printing of the Subject-Index was then roughly estimated at about six years.

The practical difficulty of Subject-indexing the London Library must not be overlooked. The London Library is a circulating library with at least 15,000 to 16,000 books in the hands of members. A device had to be adopted to prevent the same book coming up for examination twice, and to ensure that each book was catalogued. It has also not always been easy to induce members to return the books held by them. It is due to this cause that a few books which the Library possesses will be found to have escaped insertion, but everything has been done to minimise such omissions.

While offering the work to subscribers at a moderate price, every possible contrivance has been adopted to economise space and to obtain clearness for reading. The objection to issuing a serviceable catalogue in anything but a single volume seemed decisive. The system of abbreviations (of which a table is added) was adopted to reduce the bulk; it is hoped that subscribers will easily accustom themselves to their use. To have dispensed with such abbreviations would have materially added to the size and cost of the work, and would have rendered it too large for convenient handling.

The total cost of preparing the manuscript and of printing and binding an edition of 3,000 copies of the Index (irrespective of the labours of the Librarian) has amounted to £4,283.

A first attempt of this kind must necessarily contain many errors, and important omissions will also inevitably be brought to light in course of examination, but should the Index find favour with scholars it is by their help and criticism alone that it can be improved. To them I would appeal for assistance to make a subsequent edition (should there ever be a demand for one) more complete.

APPEAL TO SCHOLARS

The Subject-Index clearly shows that there are real deficiencies and gaps in the collection of books in the London Library. The Committee confidently appeals to its members to make these deficiencies good by donations. These lacunæ are most startling perhaps in the sets of periodicals and the publications of learned Societies, but many other valuable works are, it is to be regretted, missing from the shelves of the Library, which may possibly be standing unused on the shelves of some member.

APPEAL TO MEMBERS

Away from the disturbing elements of the Issue and Reading Rooms of the Library, in a small book-lined garret called the Cataloguing Room—seventy-four steps up—the work of making this Index has been done. Roughly 200,000 volumes—quartos, folios, octavos, and the rest—have been laboriously carried there, partly by lift and partly by hand, at the rate of about 200 a day. The work, it was suggested, should be completed in five years, so the calculation was an easy one, viz., how much should be done each day. With 200,000 books, at the rate of 200 a day it would require 1,000 working days. The year does not contain at most, it is said, more than 257 working days of 8 hours (deducting 52 Sundays, 30 days for holidays, and 52 half-holidays on Saturdays = 26 days). It was clear, therefore, that to accomplish this within the limit laid down, the working days and working hours had to be increased. And it is satisfactory to record that the Index has been done in less than the allotted time and without undue strain.

MAKING OF

The staff employed has been as follows: The Librarian, the Assistant Librarian, four junior assistants (of whom two were typists), one boy clerk, and one porter.

The method adopted was simple. Three of the staff were told off to catalogue the books; for each book not less than two slips (of paper 9½ by 2 inches) were to be typed with short titles. The entry for each book in the Author Catalogue was to be strictly adhered to, and each slip was to contain the heading and sub-heading and any additional note in the right-hand corner which the assistant thought necessary. If the heading and sub-heading were not obvious these were to be omitted, for insertion afterwards by the Librarian or Assistant Librarian. The slips—two or more according to the discretion of the typists—with any references also on slips of their own, were then placed in each book and brought through in fifties to the Librarian and Assistant Librarian, who, sitting opposite to each other, examined each book critically, verified the heading and sub-heading on each of the slips, and added any notes that would obviate the necessity of calling for the book a second time during the final revision for press. Authorities for a particular classification were in many cases written down, in case doubts should afterwards arise, and also to avoid unnecessary discussion. The Librarian and Assistant Librarian, who worked independently except when in consultation over any difficult subject, then exchanged slips and ran through each other's work with a view to the detection of clerical or other errors, or to the discussion of each other's classification. Many a discussion has taken place round that table; many a disagreement has been registered, but the peace of the room has not once been broken.

At this stage the slips were handed back to the typists to make duplicate copies and any additional references which had been indicated. To describe the variety of small time-saving devices would be tedious. The slips were then handed to the assistant who had charge of a book into which the headings and sub-headings and references were entered, and were submitted to a third criticism. Lastly the slips were sorted into alphabetical order, and cards with the heading and sub-heading were typewritten, and relegated to the drawers.

The "Headings Book," as the book alluded to above was named, has been of great value, and without some such book the work would quickly have got into hopeless disorder; for with the multiplication of headings it would be impossible to remember accurately and at the moment the exact heading or sub-heading which had finally been adopted—whether, for instance, we had chosen China rather than Porcelain, Precious Stones rather than Gems and Precious Stones as the heading. This book, of course, had to be accurately kept, and great credit is due to Mr. C. Kennelly for the careful way in which he has done this work, and for his intelligent criticisms. The American Library Association List of Subject Headings, 1901, has been used as a foundation, and a most useful one it has proved to be; I desire here to thank the American Library Association for their excellent list of headings.

It is important to note that the "Headings Book" is not a classified list of headings. The books themselves have suggested the headings. There has been no idea throughout of suiting the books to any ready-made system of classification. Such a scheme would have been unworkable and would have led to a pedantic classification.

The staff (three of whom were quite new recruits taken from school) quickly fell in with the method which has worked smoothly throughout, and which has reduced the mechanical labour of the Librarian and the Assistant Librarian to a minimum; though it can hardly be said that any kind of labour on a Subject-Index is really mechanical. Intelligence is required at every turn, and each member of the staff has, I think, justified his appointment.

During the final revision of the work, which began in January 1909, much valuable aid, which should considerably enhance the value and authority of the Subject-Index, has been given by scholars and friends possessing expert knowledge of various kinds, as will be seen from the list below. Whenever a doubt existed, the slip was marked with an asterisk in the right-hand corner and an expert consulted. It is hoped, therefore, that serious mistakes will not be found in the Index.

In some cases the whole heading has been critically examined by a scholar.

A short Appendix has been added containing the books which came into the Library too late to be inserted, and a few which the members did not return in time. APPENDIX

For the general reader who may wish to have a conspectus of the headings in the Index there is appended a summary of headings, roughly arranged in seven classes with general sub-divisions. I have intentionally refrained from minute classification as the numerous references under each heading in the Index render this unnecessary. SYNOPSIS OF HEADINGS

The printing was begun in February 1909, and has been carried on by Messrs. SPOTTISWOODE & CO., LIMITED, with remarkable rapidity and accuracy. They have completed a work of a peculiarly complicated nature in less than twelve months, sending out the quarto sheets at the rate of forty pages a week. The correction of so large a quantity of proofs, at such a rate of progress, has entailed great and protracted labour. PRINTING

I am indebted to so many friends, members, printers' readers, and other scholars, that the task of adequately acknowledging my gratitude to everybody is a difficult one. ACKNOWLEDGMENTS:

To my staff of assistants, headed by Mr. F. COX and Mr. J. BEAN, who have at all times worked with attention and willingness, I am first and foremost indebted. The diligence with which they have attended to the ordinary needs of the members and have helped in the administrative and routine work of the Library during the last few years has enabled me to devote more time to the Subject-Index than I could otherwise have done. TO STAFF

Those who may use this Index should, above all others, be grateful to Mr. C. J. PURNELL, M.A. (the Assistant Librarian), who resigned his appointment at the Bodleian to join my Cataloguing Staff in November 1905. Mr. Purnell has been my co-worker and right-hand man throughout, and has thrown himself into the work with exceptional zeal and energy. If the Index should happily be found fairly accurate and complete, much of such accuracy and completeness is to be attributed to him. TO CATALOGUING STAFF

Mr. C. KENNELLY and Mr. J. CORTHESEY, who have been on the Cataloguing Staff from the very beginning, have shown not only devotion to the work of which any librarian might be proud, but a knowledge and accuracy which have been my delight.

Miss E. LEE (Secretary of the English Association) has also rendered assistance in some of the bypaths of literature, which has been most helpful.

To Messrs. Spottiswoode's readers, Mr. A. WILLIAMS, Mr. J. L'ENFANT, and their assistants, I owe a great debt. To print a work of this kind in nine months and incur a bill for corrections of no more than £170 10s. (just 10 per cent.) is a feat which could only be accomplished with the intelligent co-operation of the Printers' Readers; and the fact that those friends who have read the proofs should declare them "a marvel of typography" is in the main due to these gentlemen. TO MESSRS. SPOTTISWOODE'S READERS

I am further under great obligation to two of the Vice-Presidents of the London Library, Mr. FREDERIC HARRISON and Sir FRANK MARZIALS, and to the following members of the Committee, Dr. A. W. WARD, Master of Peterhouse, Cambridge, Mr. H. R. TEDDER, Sir FREDERICK POLLOCK, Dr. J. FITZMAURICE-KELLY, Mr. INGRAM BYWATER, and Sir COURTENAY ILBERT, who kindly undertook to read through the proof-sheets, and who one and all have given me much encouragement and many valuable suggestions. TO PROOF READERS

It is also a pleasure to reckon among those who have helped to make this Index more valuable Mr. J. B. BURY, Regius Professor of Modern History at Cambridge, who, though not a member of the Library, volunteered to read the proofs, and has given me the aid of his great knowledge; Mr. A. W. K. MILLER and Mr. G. F. HILL, two of the most prominent scholars in the British Museum; and last, but not least, Mr. HAKLUYT EGERTON, who critically revised all my philosophical headings and slips, and has devoted hours to this labour, to him a real labour of love.

Many others have also given me their time and assistance.

Rarely, if ever, has a Librarian had the advantage of consulting such a number of distinguished scholars and experts. Whatever in the Index approaches perfection is due to them.

NOTES

THE SUBJECT-INDEX is a Supplement to the Author Catalogue, and is not intended to be used quite independently of it, though, generally speaking, this is possible.

The arrangement of the books under each heading will, it is hoped, be seen at a glance. The entries which immediately follow the heading are the works, theoretical or practical, dealing with the subject generally. Then follow the various sub-headings in alphabetical order, and lastly, at the end, the general references.

GENERAL
MENT OF

Where the entries under a heading are very numerous an index has been placed at the top showing into what sub-headings it is divided.

Practical considerations have governed the arrangement as to the number, or omission, of sub-headings.

The headings are arranged in alphabetical order, all compound words and phrases, such as Land Taxation; Stone Implements; &c., being for this purpose reckoned as if spelt in one word. Special attention must be given to this point.

ALPHA-BETICAL ORDER

In the arrangement of groups of books and sub-headings preference has throughout been given to alphabetical order, even when in a few instances under historical headings a chronological order seemed more desirable.

In the choice of words and combinations of words for headings I have been guided by the desire to select those to which the ordinary person would naturally turn. Many phrases and compound words in everyday use will therefore be found, as for example: Nature Study; Object Teaching; Rural Depopulation; Home Rule; Tree Worship; Lake Dwellings; Stone Monuments; Land Taxation; Place Names; Imperial Federation; National Defence; Ancestor-Worship; Self-Culture; Representative Government; Crown Lands; Second Advent. All these combinations of words are reckoned as one word in the alphabetical arrangement.

HEADINGS

A "Heading" is always printed in Bold Latin type, sic: Northamptonshire.

Consistency in the matter of sub-headings has not been attempted. They have been chosen to suit the varying character of the heading and the nature of the books possessed by the Library.

SUB-
HEADINGS

The sub-headings have been made as numerous as possible, though this has involved a certain amount of overlapping and duplication of entries.

When the books dealing with a subject are exceptionally numerous, an attempt has been made to subdivide still further.

The task of differentiation has, however, often been difficult. In some cases books purely Topographical have been separated from books of Travel, and works on the Social Life of a country have been grouped under a special sub-heading or heading, and purely military works have been separated from Reminiscences (see Franco-German War). This arrangement has not been followed where it appeared unnecessary.

Sub-headings are always printed in De Vinne Italics, sic: History, Topography & Antiquities.

Numerous references have been added to aid the reader. Those at the end of all the entries under a heading are of importance for the whole subject of the heading, while those following the entries under a sub-heading are limited to, or of especial importance for, that part of the subject.

REFER-ENCES

STYLE OF ENTRY:

The reason for placing a book under a particular heading is not always self-evident, owing to titles being shortened; the reader ought to have the Author Catalogue at hand to consult if he wishes to ascertain the full title.

Abbreviations

Everything has been done to ensure condensation and brevity consistent with clearness, and various devices have been adopted to that end.

(1) When the words of the heading recur in the titles of the book initials are substituted for them, as for example under Birds:—

Dixon (C.) Rural b. life, 1880.

Attention must therefore always be paid to the headings and sub-headings under which the entries appear, or reference must be made to the Author Catalogue.

(2) The following omissions may be specially noted:—

(a) The initials of names of authors when the surname is uncommon and the omission does not interfere with easy reference to the Author Catalogue.

(b) The opening words of many titles, such as: Lectures on; Short account of; Dissertation sur; Etude sur; Mémoires sur; Observations sur; Remarques sur; &c.

(c) The definite and indefinite articles, both in English and foreign titles, as a rule.

(d) All bibliographical details.

Where the Library contains several pamphlets on the same subject by one or various authors bound together, they have not always been catalogued separately, but only one pamphlet has been catalogued as a specimen, and the letters "& o.p." (= "and other papers" or "and other pamphlets" on the same subject) have been added to the entry.

Brackets in Entries

(1) Entries of anonymous works are sometimes preceded by a word or name in square brackets, as for example:—

[Parliament]. Debates in H. of C., 1625, 1873.

[Peace]. Thoughts on peace, 1783.

This indicates that the full entry will be found in the Author Catalogue under that name [i.e. Parliament; Peace].

(2) The letter "B" in square brackets at the end of an entry indicates that the book mentioned contains a bibliography of the subject, as for example:—

Seignobos (C.) Hist. de la civilis. anc. j. 10s., 1903; tr., 1907. [B.]

(3) When works which have been published as separate essays or in serial form also make part of another volume, the volume or serial in which they are to be found is added in square brackets, if reference to the Author Catalogue would not immediately provide the information, as for example:—

Emerson (R. W.) Nature, 1836; [& in h. Essays, 1848; Wks., var. ed.].

Evans (A. J.) Prehist. tombs of Knossos, 1906; [& in Arch., v59ii, 1905].

Dashes

A dash (—) before a date in a title indicates that the work covers the whole period of the heading down to the given date, as for example:—

Baker (R.) Chron. (—1727), var. ed.

A dash (—) after a date indicates that the work covers the period from the given date to the date of publication, as for example:—

Gosse (E.) Short hist. of Eng. lit. (1350—), 1898; 1905.

A dash (—) after a date of publication indicates that the Library has the subsequent volumes to the present date, as for example:—

English hist. review, 1886—.

Dates

(1) Care has been taken to insert dates of the period covered by the work wherever possible, especially in the case of historical works. When no date is given for an historical work it is to be understood that the book is a general work on the subject.

(2) If the book is a reprint, the original date of publication has been inserted.

(3) Under the sub-heading "Biographies," in cases where the dates of birth and death have been unobtainable the reader will find dates in parentheses. These dates are not those of birth and death, but are those covered by the book or books.

The dates of editions are separated by a semi-colon. When successive editions have a different number of volumes, the number of volumes of the first edition only (or, if the first edition is not possessed by the Library, the earliest edition possessed) is given, as for example :—

Jesse (J. H.) Mem. of Court, 1688–1760, 3v, 1843; 1846.

If the Library possesses three or more editions the words "var. ed." (= various editions) or "see A. C." (= see Author Catalogue) have been added to the entry, and the Author Catalogue must be consulted for the dates.

The names of editors have, in most cases, been omitted. But where the name of the editor has been important and the means of identification of the edition, it has been inserted.

For the sake of brevity the words "edited by," "herausgegeben," &c. have been omitted, and the name of the editor, preceded by a semi-colon only, added, as for example :—

Merlin, c. 1450–60; Wheatley, 2v, 1899.

When the letters "Wks." (= Works) are printed in italics the reader must understand all the works entered in the Author Catalogue. This abbreviation does not refer to any particular edition, as for example :—

Jefferies (R.) Wks., see A. C.

In general, the titles of translations have not been given when there is a copy of the original in the Library, but the fact that there is a translation in the Library is noted by the letters "tr.," and the date of its publication is given.

General works of History have been placed under the name of the country. Great events in the history of a country or of the world will be found as separate headings in the Index rather than under the country, as for example: Bounty, Mutiny of; Coup d'Etat, 1851; Berlin Conference, 1885; Magna Charta; Franco-German War, 1870–1; but references have always been made from the country &c.

Names of sovereigns of the larger and more important countries have also been adopted as headings: e.g. Sigismund, Emperor; Victoria, Q. of Gt. Brit.; William I, German Emperor.

When the sovereign's name serves as a heading, his or her name stands for the period of history which the reign covers; and all books which deal with the history, public finance, &c. of the reign are placed under the name of the sovereign.

Many old chronicles have different titles in different editions, e.g. "Annales Magdeburgenses" and "Chronographus Saxo" are two titles of the same chronicle. Either the best known title is given in this Index, or else the title of the first edition is quoted.

(1) Where a chronicle is indexed in the Author Catalogue, the reader is referred to it.

(2) The words "see A. C." are followed by "[& in]" when the work enclosed in brackets has not been indexed in the Author Catalogue, as for example :—

Diceto (R. de) Abbrev. Chron. (—1147), see A. C.; [& in Twysden, Hist., 1652].

(3) Where the note "in var. colls., consult Potthast" occurs, the reader is to understand that the Library contains several editions, but it would be advisable first to consult Potthast's Bibliotheca Historica Medii Ævi, 1896 edition.

The treatment of Biography calls for remark. It does not form a separate heading, but appears as a sub-heading under the subject with which the biography is properly concerned; for instance, under Acting will be found a sub-heading, Biographies, setting forth the lives of actors, which are in the Library, arranged alphabetically, with dates of birth and death. Such biographies will be found under the actors' names in the Author Catalogue. Under names of sovereigns are entered lists of the biographies of the public men who flourished during their reigns. In the course of indexing, however, biographies other than those given in the Author Catalogue have been unearthed. These are added after the dates of birth and death in square brackets, sic [& in], as for example :—

Clarendon (E., e. qf), 1609–74; [& in MacDiarmid, Lives, v2, 1820].

Literature has been dealt with as exhaustively as possible; such headings as Drama, Satire, Literature, Poetry, Sonnets, will be found in their alphabetical order in the Index.

Attention, however, is called to the following points :—

(1) The pure literature or Belles-Lettres of England, France, and Germany has been exceptionally treated. The reader will find such headings as English Literature, French Literature, German Literature, under which there are sub-headings Anthologies, Foreign Influence, History & Criticism, Texts &c. Under the sub-heading "Texts," only the literary works of English, French, & German authors prior to the sixteenth century have been included, because these are interesting from a linguistic point of view and are not as well known as those of the later centuries. Those subsequent to the fifteenth century have been entirely omitted. For the more modern writers the reader may be expected to consult the histories of literature.

(2) It has not been thought necessary to give a list of the names of dramatists and poets under these three literatures (English, French, and German drama, and poetry). These lists would be too long, and each dramatist or poet is to be found in the Author Catalogue, together with any biography or criticism of his work.

(3) The Fiction of these three countries has similarly been entirely omitted from this Index, but a few novels have, here and there, been designedly included under the history of countries, &c., where the novel had some special interest. The reader will, however, find headings English Fiction, French Fiction, German Fiction, under which bibliographies and histories have been grouped.

(4) Texts of the works of Ancient Greek and Latin authors have been omitted under Greek Drama, Greek Poetry, Latin Poetry, &c.

(5) The less known literatures have been more fully treated. Complete lists of the names of the literary writers, poets, dramatists, and novelists which the Library possesses will be found under Spanish Literature, Spanish Fiction, Spanish Poetry, Italian Fiction, Italian Poetry, &c. For the titles of their works, however, the Author Catalogue must be consulted.

(6) The texts of the works of mediæval Greek and Latin writers will be found in their proper place under Greek Literature, Byzantine; Latin Poetry, Mediæval & Modern; Latin Drama, Mediæval & Modern; Latin Literature, Mediæval & Modern.

TITLES OF HONOUR

Titles such as Sir, Honble., &c., have been omitted except when necessary for identification.

When the title or rank of an author has been changed since the issue of the Author Catalogue the form in the A. C. has been adhered to throughout.

ESSAYS

Discretion has been used as to the inclusion of literary and other essays, and it is hoped that no important omission has been made. As a general rule, essays which are obviously reviews of books have been excluded.

SCIENCE

In Botanical and Zoological headings the familiar name, where there is one, has been adopted in preference to the scientific.

COLLEC- TIONS OF WORKS

The works in sets, like the Contributions to Knowledge of the Smithsonian Institution; Harleian Miscellany; Historisches Taschenbuch; Migne's Patrologia; Monumenta Germaniæ Hist.; Pamphleteer, 1813-28; Petermanns Mittheilungen (Ergänzungsbände); Somers' Tracts; Staats- u. socialwiss. Forschungen, &c., have been indexed according to subject.

PAMPHLETS

All the pamphlets in the Library, to the number of between 15,000 and 20,000, in 1,129 volumes, have been included in the Index.

PARLIA- MENTARY PAPERS

References have also been made to the small but valuable collection of Parliamentary Papers. In the last two decades or so all the more important Parliamentary Papers (including the Reports and Minutes of Evidence of all Royal Commissions) have been purchased, and it has been thought worth while to include these valuable documents in the Subject-Index.

The form of entry has generally been as follows :—

Parl. papers, see special catalogue.

The special catalogue is the "List of Parliamentary Papers" issued by the Library in 1903.

Where separate papers have been indexed the first number in square brackets is the arbitrary number given by the London Library to the bound volume of Papers, those at the end in parentheses are the official Command numbers given to the Papers themselves, as for example :—

Parl. papers [709]. Surnames in Ir.; Matheson, 1894. (c. 7289).

Periodicals have not been indexed in detail ; but they have been entered collectively under their main subject. Periodicals containing political articles have been grouped under the sovereigns during whose reigns they have been published, as for example, the Nineteenth Century will be found under Victoria. PERIODICALS

The Proceedings of learned societies have been indexed under subjects, with the result that much valuable work hidden away in those volumes is now brought to light and made available. SOCIETY PUBLICATIONS

The following three tables show exactly what has been done.

ABBREVIATIONS

N.B.—The following notes are absolutely essential for those who use this Index :—

- (1) A.C. = Author Catalogue & Supplements of the London Library, 1903-1909.
- (2) Special catalogue, in connection with entries of Parliamentary Papers, refers to the London Library List of Parliamentary Papers & Supplement (the latter as yet in MS.), 1903-9.
- (3) When the words of the heading recur in the titles of the books, initials are substituted for them, as under Algebra, Darby (G.) Pop. a., & Dupuis (N. F.) Elem. a.
- (4) & in. Special attention is drawn to & in. Whenever this occurs under the sub-heading Biographies, &c., it is essential to look first in the Author Catalogue, where the chief books dealing with the subject of the Biography are to be found.

Adjectival and noun endings, such as the following, are omitted :—

The following notes are absolutely essential for those who use this Index :—

- (1) A. C. = Author Catalogue & Supplements of the London Library, 1903–1909.
- (2) Special catalogue, in connection with entries of Parliamentary Papers, refers to the London Library List of Parliamentary Papers & Supplement (the latter as yet in MS.), 1903–9.
- (3) When the words of the heading recur in the titles of the books, initials are substituted for them, as under Algebra, Darby (G.) Pop. a., & Dupuis (N. F.) Elem. a.
- (4) & in. Special attention is drawn to & in. Whenever this occurs under the sub-heading Biographies, &c., it is essential to look first in the Author Catalogue, where the chief books dealing with the subject of the Biography are to be found.
